

Für das herausragende Schweizer Resultat zeichnete Maya Schärer (Foto), die mit Sara Cardin (Nr. 9) und Travat Khaksar (Nr. 3) zwei Top-Ten Athletinnen schlug. Damit bewies sie (World Ranking Nr. 19 von 443) einmal mehr, dass sie mit der absoluten Welt-Elite mithalten kann. Weitere Platzierungen erreichten Ramona Brüderlin (9. Rang, +68 kg) und Yuki Ujihara (23. Rang Kata).

Als Coaches waren David Baumann, Daniel Humel Guido Mark, Franco Pisino, Simone Posavec, Michelle Saner, Brigitte Quirici, Rudi und Demian Seiler sowie Naoki Ujihara im Einsatz. Als Schiedsrichter engagierten sich Daniel Brunner und Truong-Linh Pham.

Stark handicapiert startete Elena Quirici. Original Kommentar auf Facebook:

Many people were surprised about my performance in Paris. I lost in the first match clear and didnt fought like i used to. There are many reasons but two bigger one. 1. I started the new year with a broken nose, less then one month ago I broke my nose 5 times (yes many times) and had a surgery. Till the Paris Open I wasn't allowed to receive any punched, which make the karate training really difficult. Just in Saturday my fightday, my bone was strong enough to fight again. But I was positive and I felt ready to fight and do good matches. 2. But then two days before my competition I got really ill, fighting with fever, headache, bad stomach, feeling dizzy and no sleep in the last days is not the best preparation for a big competition. I was thinking in not to fight, cause the chance that I lose in the first match were bigger then the chance of winning. But I decided to fight and dont give up. Well I fought and i am proud of me. I know that I am capable of achieve my dreams, I just need to be healthy. Now is the time to get healthy, recover fast and be the best version of myself again. Remember, after every rain comes the sunshine again.

A big thank you to all the people who was standing by my side. Especially to the doctors who made it possible to get the operation as fast as possible. @atlusswissportmedcenter (Dr. med. Lukas Weisskopf), Dr. Molnar and also a big thanks to timo (Basler Orthopädie René Ruepp) for the express work for my facemask. Im happy that i have my family, my coaches and my boyfriend who have my back and supported me in this hard moments and gave me energy!

Auch nach Paris bleibt Quirici auf Olympiakurs
